The Problem:

The current process of verifying certification and license data today is antiquated and broken.

* Labor-Intensive * Time-Prohibitive * Error-Prone * Static (Risk) * Expensive *

- Fraud (currently estimated to cost $600 billion annually) and exposure to legal liability from uncertified or unlicensed workers, contractors or partners has forced companies to rely on expensive and time-consuming background checks.
- Organization and maintenance of licenses and certifications, timetables of associated renewal and expiration dates, and disciplinary events is a daunting and expensive task, but nonetheless vital.
- Whether inadvertent expiration of hard-earned certifications and licenses or fraud, not having represented credentials increases business risk and compromises enterprise value.
- Due to rapidly evolving technology, regulation and skill-based education, confirming and managing represented skills is more important than ever.
